Evidence–Policy Analysis Capacity Internship in Addressing Climate Change and Climate Justice for a Resilient Future in Rural Indonesia

This one-month internship and training program offers international students the opportunity to work on climate change and climate justice issues in rural Indonesia. Combining theoretical sessions, practical policy analysis, field visits, and cross-cultural engagement, the program develops skills in evidence-based policymaking, advocacy, and collaborative governance. It is designed for students from Asia, Australia, and Europe, promoting South–North dialogue and shared understanding of climate challenges and solutions. The period of this program lasts for one month and has a quota of 10 international students.

Eligibility and Requirements:

- ★ Master's/PhD students or advanced undergraduate students from universities in Asia, Australia, and Europe, majoring in Public Administration, Public Policy, Environmental Studies, International Development, Political Science, Sociology, or related fields. Ideal candidates will have a strong interest in climate change, social justice, and collaborative approaches to development.
- ★ Minimum GPA of 3.0/4.0 (or equivalent).
- ★ Ability to communicate in English and/or Bahasa Indonesia.

Industrial Internship Program at Bobobox Indonesia
